INVITATION

Networking event at the Finnish Institute to Open Knowledge Festival 2014

We would like to invite you to an international networking event on Tuesday 15 July at 14–17 at the Finnish Institute in Berlin. The meeting takes place just before the Open Knowledge Festival 2014, as numerous out-of-the-box thinking people from all over the world meet up in the city.

We would like to invite you to an international networking event before the Open Knowledge Festival begins. Since we believe in partnership and openness as positive forces for change, we want to bring actors from different fields together to share their knowledge and to inspire each other. The invitees come from multiple and cross-over branches like IT, education, sciences, design, future planning and marketing to share interests and ideas and to discuss innovations. We are looking forward to an open dialogue and encounter!

Open Knowledge Festival is one of the biggest open data and open knowledge events in the world. The festival was launched in Helsinki, Finland in 2012 and now on 15–17 July it comes to Berlin. The festival will bring together over a thousand participants from more than 60 countries to share their skills and experiences. The theme of the year is "Open Minds to Open Action" and the topics will cover a range of issues related to open data and open knowledge, the tools for working with knowledge and the societal actors involved.

Please enroll to the event in advance, at the latest on Tuesday 8 July at presse@finstitut.de. For more information please contact Kirsi Turunen: wissenschaft@finstitut.de. Feel free to spread the invitation to people you think could be interested!
